

News Release

August 20, 2012

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Coppell Middle School North Band Back In School

COPPELL, TX – Seventh and eighth grade students of the Coppell Middle School North Band capped off a week of camp with the band’s first concert of the 2012-2013 school year last Friday. Their performance showcased the talent, drive and determination that led the band to be named the 2011-2012 Texas Music Educators Association CC State Honor Band.

“Very few bands have a major performance before the school year begins,” said Director of Bands Jeremy Lindquist. “The kids and parents love it and it’s a great opportunity to start preparing for upcoming contests and other events.”

With the start of school days away, the students received a jump-start on learning music for the upcoming year through five days of rigorous training with the school’s band directors and a team of music teachers. “We have some of the finest music educators in the region working with the students—sharing more than 250 collective years of experience with them. This is an incredible learning experience,” said Lindquist.

For more information on the award-winning CMSN band, go to the band website at www.CMSNband.org.

